[OCCASIONAL PAPER.]

Prosecutions by the Associate Institution for Improving and Enforcing the Laws for the Protection of Women.

CLERKENWELL SESSIONS, January 12th, 1874.

(Before MR. SERJEANT COX.)

Pierre Desprès, 52, a Teacher of Languages, was indicted for indecently assaulting John Kain, 15, and Margaret Kain, only 10 years of age. After the evidence had been given in support of the charge, the prisoner was permitted to call witnesses to speak to his general good character. Permission was afterwards obtained to call other witnesses to speak as to his bad character. It was proved that he had undergone 18 months' imprisonment with hard labour for indecently assaulting a boy—that he had been summarily convicted at the Mansion House on two similar charges—and that other accusations of the same kind had been made, but the complainants had declined to take proceedings against him.

The Jury returned a verdict of guilty.

Mr. Serjeant Cox, in passing sentence, remarked that the thanks of the public were due to the Society for having taken up this prosecution. The prisoner was incorrigible, and the Bench regretted that they could not inflict a more severe punishment. He must be imprisoned and kept at hard labour for two years.

[OCCASIONAL PAPER.]

A Prosecution by the Associate Institution for Improving and Enforcing the Laws for the Protection of Women.

MIDDLESEX SESSIONS, CLERKENWELL,
October 23*rd*, 1874.

(Before Mr. SERJEANT COX.)

(The following report is from the Times of 24th Oct.)

"William Fitzgerald, 50, was indicted for unlawfully and maliciously wounding Catherine, his wife, on the 31st of March last.

Mr. Besley, on behalf of the Associate Institution for the Protection of Women, prosecuted.

The prisoner is an Irishman, and was married in 1859. He ill-treated his wife immediately afterwards, and was committed to prison for assaults on her. In 1862 he went to America, and was absent eight years. He returned to London in 1870, and during the four years which have elapsed, he has spent two years in prison for violent assaults upon his wife. She separated from him in September or October, 1873, and was living in Lincoln-court, Drury-lane, with her son, aged 11, until February last, when another child was born; and, four days after her confinement, the prisoner went there, beat her, and would have killed her but for the interference of the woman who was acting as nurse. On that occasion, he was bound over to keep the peace. On the 31st of March, on leaving work, he met his son, and took him to Heron's buildings, St. Katherine's Docks. He told the boy, when he cried to go home, that he would do for him and for his mother too. He left him at a Mrs. Collins's, and believed that he would sleep there, and that he might commit violence on his wife when she was alone with the baby, then five weeks old. But Mrs. Collins sent the boy home by an omnibus, and mother and son went to bed, and bolted the door. At half-past 4 on the following morning, the prisoner burst in, with a brick in his hand, but put it down, and used as a weapon an iron fender, four feet long and nine inches wide, with a sharp edge. He did not utter a word, but, with the fender, struck his wife on the cheek, the arm, the shoulder, and the legs. She begged him not to murder her, but he did not desist until she was senseless; and the son called out, "You have murdered my mother at last." He then got away over the walls of the houses in the rear, and was

Prosecutions by the Associate Institution for Improving and Enforcing the Laws for the Protection of Women.

SURREY SESSIONS, NEWINGTON,

June 8th, 1875.

(Before W. HARDMAN, Esq.)

WILLIAM BAILEY, a Clerk, was indicted for improperly assaulting Ada Florence Nettleton, only 9 years of age.

Prisoner pleaded guilty.

The Chairman said that he had looked over the depositions of the charge, and that the prisoner, by pleading guilty, had saved the Court the trouble of going through a case which would have revealed a most disgraceful state of things. He was sorry that the law did not give Magistrates at Quarter Sessions the power to order prisoners of this description a good sound flogging, as he should certainly have ordered flogging in this case. He regretted that the law only enabled him to sentence the prisoner to two years' imprisonment with hard labour.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT,

June 10th, 1875.

(Before Mr. JUSTICE BLACKBURN.)

JOHN FOY, THOMAS FOY and JAMES BURR, labourers, were indicted for an outrageous assault upon Mary Ann Ward, a married woman.
